

SPOGA On the Grow

All that's necessary to comprehend the international scope of the International Equestrian Sports Center at the SPOGA trade show in Cologne is to listen carefully. Dozens of languages ring out across the busy halls at Koelnmesse.

Italian. Chinese. French. German. Even some English.

This annual trade show attracted 369 exhibitors this year, up considerably from last year. About 100 came from the host country of Germany and the remainder from countries across the globe.

Participation from China has increased in recent years, and exhibitors from India and Pakistan continue to view SPOGA as vital for their business operations.

Only a handful of American companies exhibit at SPOGA, but the number appears to be growing. Among the brands common to market-goers in the United States also appearing at SPOGA were JT International, Red River Clothing, Horshware Ireland and JPC Equestrian. Other American companies' products were represented by distributors
