

the Justin Authentic Western Headwear line. Both are known for attention to detail and quality hand-crafting.

S.H. Baik (left) and Douglas Highsmith (right) celebrate the ribbon-cutting of the Milano manufacturing facility by decorating John Milano, founder of the company. Baik and Highsmith are owners of Dorfman Pacific, which purchased Milano in 2004.

Lammler Announces Retirement

Doug Lammler, long-time co-owner of Lammler's Western Wear and Tack in Alberta, Canada, announced that he is retiring. Lammler told Tack 'n Togs at the Stanley Atlantic City Market that he has sold his interest in the company to his brother, Barry, effective Aug. 25.

"Building this company was my primary focus of the past 24 years," Lammler said in a statement to his vendors. "I look forward to spending time on new interests."

In addition to growing his company to 24 stores, Lammler has also been recognized as a top retailer by organizations both outside and within the equine trade industry. Last year, Lammler's was named one of the 50 best managed companies in Canada. Lammler was also the Tack 'n Togs Best of the Best award winner in the retail category for 2006. 🐾

Saddle Barn INC.

Quality Manufactured Products

1102 N. Garden, Roswell New Mexico
1-800-759-2276 * www.saddlebarn.com

